PL has been taught and applied in many organizations and settings including corporate, academic, non-governmental, governmental, and community sectors. „Very interesting, exciting approach. It's worth investing time to learn it – it offers a holistic, practical, and immediate benefit and makes a lot of sense to improve our life and the way we interact with other people. It includes many interesting intercultural aspects and invites to steer the discussion and exploration how PL is understood and practiced in various cultures. About the PL team in Germany

- Arvid John was inspired when he experienced PL in a high-pace, spatially confined, intercultural academic program in 2008. He has been a practitioner of PL ever since, regularly working with PL's founders in the US to develop his skills and practice as well as facilitating PL events in Germany with Rita Wuebbeler
- Sabine Wagner took part in the first Foundations of PL in Osterstedt, Germany in 2012. She continued supporting the growing PL interest in Germany and Europe by organizing and participating in the first Training of Facilitators (ToF) conducted outside the US in Taufkirchen-Vils, Germany in 2013. Personal Leadership is embedded in much of her intercultural work
- Jacquelyn Reeves was also a member of these Foundations and Training of Facilitators seminars in Germany and continues to grow her practice by facilitating Personal Leadership competencies and practices with international business students in Berlin
